Dear Prime Minister Starmer,

I am writing to you to share my sorrow about the way that asylum seekers and refugees are being treated in the UK.

It is particularly unfair that these people are restricted to not working. This means that they can't earn money causing them to live in poverty across Great Britain making them bored all the time becoming depressed and lonely. In addition, asylum seekers get paid a wage of £49.18p per week to live on. This is an outrage! These people are living not existing, and you need to do something about it! Because asylum seekers don't know when they get their refugee status, they could lose motivation to work if they even get their refugee status.

Also, asylum seekers can't go to university leading them to have poorer qualifications, which then forces them to get a lower paid job.

In addition, they do not choose where they live or who they live with and can get moved at any time. Because of this, friendships that they make are broken when they move making them lonely and sad. This cannot be possible! You must do something about this matter.

Furthermore, asylum seekers do not get a suitable food standard and tend to eat chips or other unhealthy foods e.g. burgers. They also have a curfew that they must be in the hotel and if they don't, they will be unable to return to the hotel that night. This is not how a human should be treated!

I do hope you listen to my views and take the appropriate action as soon as you can.

Yours faithfully,

Cian Shannon
